Founding Spirit

During his youth, Dr. Shigeyoshi Matsumae, founder of Tokai University Educational System (TES), was bewildered by the question “How should I live my life?” He found inspiration in the teachings of Kanzo Uchimura, a noted Japanese Christian scholar who held study group meetings for youth.

Dr. Matsumae also studied about Denmark and the role education played in the rebuilding of the nation. The impressions of these early lessons were the genesis of what has become the Tokai University Educational System. In time, Dr. Matsumae opened his first school, Bosei Gakujuku, which was inspired by the concept of Danish folk schools, and devoted his life to education.

This four-line slogan was written by Dr. Matsumae for the students of Bosei Gakujuku and continues to guide all of the schools at TES.

Cultivate your thoughts in your early days
Nurture your body in your early days
Develop your intellect in your early days
Aim your hopes towards the stars in your early days

His message to students was simple but powerful: develop both your minds and bodies to the fullest possible extent, and in doing so, acquire great insight and understanding of yourself, of life, and all aspects of the world around you.

Dr. Matsumae’s vision continues to guide and inspire TES in its mission to provide youth with a balanced education that opens their minds and nurtures within them a humanitarian spirit, thus contributing to a more peaceful world.

Admissions policy

We invite people from Japan and abroad to apply who hold the necessary qualifications to obtain an education based on the requirements set forth by the “Master’s program and first stage of doctoral program” and the “Doctoral program and second stage of doctoral program,” who understand Tokai University’s “founding spirit” and educational ideals shown below and embody the “desirable qualities of a graduate student,” and who have a high spirit of scholarly inquiry and ambition towards research.

● Desirable Qualities of a Graduate Student

1. Those who have foundational and applicable skills for their specialty, as well as a broad perspective and a desire to learn specialized knowledge.
2. Those who have the desire to play a meaningful role in building a civilized and harmonious society as someone with a high degree of expertise.
3. Those who seek to think in a multi-faceted manner about various topics, while holding their own worldview and historical perspective

■ Admissions policy of graduate schools and courses

For the admission policy of individual graduate schools and courses, please refer to the site of each school and course on the official website of Tokai University: <https://www.u-tokai.ac.jp/>

Mission

Tokai University Graduate School adheres to the founding spirit of Tokai University. It adheres to a high-level theoretical and applied approach to specialized knowledge and research and values the significance of such work. At the same time, it aims to enable learning that is responsive to the high degree of specialization and expertise that is required by professions, so that graduates can contribute to the development of cultures and the welfare of humanity.

Research Advisor

Research advisor can be searched through Tokai University’s official website. Please contact your desired research advisor prior to applying to discuss your interests and goals.
